Firms could still keep half of total

Gasoline overcharges claimed

WASHINGTON (AP) — If 20 major oil companies decide to lower the price of gasoline to pay back $336 million in alleged overcharges, you could see a brief reduction in prices at the gas pump.

But not much and not for long. The oil companies are denying vehemently the Federal Energy Administration's charge Thursday that they artificially inflated the price of oil purchased from foreign subsidiaries between October 1973 and May 1975.

During that time, the United States kept price controls on oil produced within this country, while foreign oil prices tripled.

The companies can appeal the FEA's ruling to the agency or in the federal courts.

And an FEA spokesman said that even if the oil companies eventually are forced to refund overcharges, the companies still could keep as much as half the $336 million.

They would be allowed to recalculate import deals in which they did not charge U.S. consumers the maximum allowed under the price control law.

One option the companies could take to pay back the overcharges would be a temporary price cut at the gasoline pump.

But with more than 714 million gallons of gasoline sold daily in the United States, a rebate at the pumps might consist of only a penny or two for a few days or weeks.

The companies could also choose some other method of returning the money to the public, including temporarily holding off on some future price increase instead of rolling back current prices.

Gulf Oil Corp. led the FEA's list of alleged overcharges with $79.6 million, or 23 per cent of the total.

"Gulf categorically denies that it has violated FEA regulations concerning the price of crude imports," a Gulf spokesman said.

"The company has met with the FEA on numerous occasions over the past three years in an effort to resolve this matter. Gulf continues to maintain that its pricing method was in compliance with the law and regulations in effect at the time."

Gulf and other companies contended that the FEA changed its rules after many of the transactions were completed.

Standard Oil of Indiana, listed with $55 million in alleged overcharges, accused the agency of "retroactive rulemaking." It said it had "followed the letter and the spirit of the regulations" in effect at the time.

The other companies and their alleged overcharges are:

Arco $50.1 million; Texaco $31.7 million; Sun Oil $28.9 million; Marathon $18.1 million; Phillips $15.5 million; Union $14.5 million; Mobil $11.5 million; Standard Oil of California $8.1 million.

Also, Exxon $5.6 million; Ashland $4 million; Murphy $3.9 million; Amerada Hess $2.8 million; Charter $2.1 million; Conoco $2.1 million; KerrMcGee $920,000; Standard Oil of Ohio $868,000; Getty $517,000, and Cities $117,000.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is delaying a special insulation tax break for homeowners until it considers President Carter's big energy plan. But oil-drillers may not have to wait for their own tax cut.

Nearing a final vote on what is becoming a catch-all tax cut bill, the Senate approved Thursday the first part of Carter's program — a $30-million yearly tax reduction for independent oil-drillers. That vote came a few hours after a new incentive for Americans to insulate their homes was shelved.

The Carter administration, while favoring both tax breaks, urged the Senate not to attach either to the pending tax-cut bill but to consider them later as part of the President's far-reaching energy program.

The debate over the two energy tax breaks produced a torrent of food metaphors, with senators' likening them to lollipops, rice pudding, sweetener and raisins, as well as bitter pills.

In June balloting

Some Perry voters face school issues

While most of the voters in Fayette County will not be casting ballots in the regularly scheduled June 7, a special election will be held in Perry Township for approximately 100 persons.

Voters residing in the portion of the Greenfield School District which overlaps into Perry Township will be casting ballots on two proposed school tax issues.

Mrs. Mary Jean Jennings, director of the Fayette County Board of Elections, said only about 100 voters in Perry Township will be affected by the special election.

A total of 107 voters in that portion of Perry Township cast ballots on a Greenfield School District issue in the 1975 general election, she said.

The issues will include a 4.84-mill operating levy and a 1.0-mill improvement levy.

The 4.84-mill tax levy will be for the purpose of meeting current expenses (48.4 cents per hundred dollars of valuation) for a continuing period of time.

The 1.0-mill levy (10 cents per hundred dollars of valuation) will be for the purpose of paying for permanent improvements, equipment, including new construction, new sites, site improvements, enlargement of existing sites and buildings, and making permanent improvements of existing buildings. The levy will be for a five-year period.

The voting precinct in the Perry Township Hall in New Martinsburg will be open on Tuesday, June 7 from 6:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. to allow persons residing in the Greenfield School District to cast ballots on the issues involved.

New attempt scheduled to cap North Sea leak

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — Paul "Red" Adair, the Texan regarded as the oil world's premier blowout specialist, arrived today to take command of a new attempt to shut off a runaway gusher that has spilled some six million gallons of oil into the North Sea in seven days.

The 62-year-old Adair and his team will seek to cap the Ekofisk Bravo well by pushing a four-ton stopper through oil moving at the speed of sound.

Adair told reporters: "We'll wind it up in a couple of days or sooner. We got a whole bunch of tricks. We'll fix it. I'll stay until we close it. It's no big thing. We do this for a living."

As Adair was preparing for a helicopter trip to the rig 168 miles west of Stavanger in the North Sea, members of his Texas disaster control team were preparing equipment for a new try at capping the well after three failed attempts on Thursday.

The attempt involves limiting the size of the flow from the wellhead to two inches in diameter so that a four-ton assembly can be swung through and over it to eventually stop the flow.

An official of Phillips Petroleum, operators of the rig, said the velocity of the flow when it is cut from 4½ to 2 inches will be 1,300 feet per second or 886 miles per hour — more than the speed of sound at sea level.

A Phillips spokesman explained that the oil flow would be about 800 pounds of pressure per square inch, which represents a reduction even though it is escaping at higher velocity.

Adair refused to call the abortive efforts so far at capping the well a failure.

Adair said he was particularly concerned with backing up Boots Hansen, whom he dispatched here with Richard Hatteberg after the well blew last Friday night.

Phillips officials said their estimates were that 4.4 million gallons of oil were on the water at noon today. This took into account an estimated evaporation rate of 18 per cent.

Norwegian officials reported that no dead fish or birds were found and that two marine biology boats found very few dead fish eggs or larvae.

"There is no major ecological damage yet," the government spokesman said.

The weather, which stopped work several times earlier this week, was again favorable for the second day in succession for the well cappers.

Removal of benign lump won't affect Mrs. Carter's schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) — The removal of a benign lump from First Lady Rosalynn Carter's breast won't interfere with her busy schedule, a White House spokeswoman says.

"She is up and about and in great spirits," said Mary Finch Hoyt, press secretary to Mrs. Carter. "This will not affect her schedule."

The non-cancerous growth, discovered during Mrs. Carter's routine six-month checkup Thursday afternoon at Bethesda Naval Hospital, was removed immediately. Mrs. Carter was back at the White House by 5 p.m.

The 40-minute operation was performed by Capt. William Fouty, chairman of the hospital's surgery department. The operation was followed by a biopsy, a microscopic examination, that showed the lump was benign.

Mrs. Hoyt said Mrs. Carter, who had no history of lumps in her breast, was alone at the hospital since the checkup was expected to be routine.

Betty Ford, who preceded Mrs. Carter as first lady, underwent a radical mastectomy for removal of her right breast on Sept. 28, 1974. Doctors detected her cancerous growth during a similar routine examination at the naval hospital in suburban Maryland.

Mrs. Hoyt said the First Lady was given a local anesthetic for the surgery, but received no additional medication afterward.

Dr. William Lukash, the White House physician, telephoned President Carter before and directly after the operation. Carter awaited his wife's return in the family living quarters, Mrs. Hoyt said.

Mrs. Hoyt declined to say which of Mrs. Carter's breasts was operated on.

"I'm not willing to ask," the spokeswoman said. "If it had been malignant, that would be something else. But this is something thousands of women go through and I don't think we need to go into it further than that."

Insulation tax break delayed

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., manager of the tax-cut measure, said that if the insulation credit were approved now, Congress would have little taste for voting stiff new energy taxes and conservation measures later this year.

"We're not going to solve this energy crisis by passing out more lollipops," said Long. The insulation credit is the sweetener and shouldn't be separated from the bitter pill of higher energy taxes, he contended.

On a 53 to 38 vote, the Senate agreed.

The same arguments were used later when Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., offered his amendment to provide more tax incentives for independent oil drillers, who claim credit for 90 per cent of the exploratory oil and gas wells drilled in the United States.

To approve that incentive by itself without considering the full Carter energy package would be "like taking a bowl of rice pudding and picking out all the raisins," said Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y.

But an effort to kill the Bentsen amendment failed, 50 to 33, and it was approved by voice vote.

The only other amendments adopted on Thursday also would benefit business. One apparently would help only two poultry-processing firms, in Arkansas and Maine, at a cost to the treasury of more than $1 million.

A second, costing $700 million, would provide extra incentive for businesses in areas of persistently high unemployment to expand their work forces.

Long expects the Senate to complete work on the tax bill late today. It then would go to a Senate-House conference committee to work out differences between positions taken by the two bodies.

The major portion of the Senate bill would raise the standard deductions, providing a tax break averaging $121 a year for 47 million couples or individuals, and give businesses tax breaks for hiring new workers.

Mrs. Lee named to succeed Bartlett

Community Education's advisory council chairman resigns duties

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald City Editor

After four years of heading the Washington C.H. Area Community Education program, Kaye Bartlett, 1296 Dayton Ave., has resigned.

Bartlett has served as chairman of the Community Education advisory council since its inception. He announced his resignation at Thursday night's advisory council meeting.

"I feel good about where we (Community Education) are at," Bartlett told the advisory council after stepping down as chairman. He will continue to serve as an advisory council member.

"I think we should recognize the incredible effort Kaye (Bartlett) has put in," the Rev. Dr. Leroy Davis, a member of the advisory council, said. "If the success of Community Education is due to any one person, it is Kay Bartlett," he said.

The governing body then elected Mrs. Kathy Lee, 521 E. Market St., as the new chairman. Mrs. Lee has been an advisory council member since its formation.

Before Bartlett's resignation, the Advisory Council adopted a proposal to restructure the Community Education program's executive committee. The committee was formed last year to form policies in areas of program, finance, and community relations.

The new committee will have six voting members instead of the previous five. But more importantly, the committee will have representation from the Fayette County Board of Education.

Previously, the Washington C.H. City Board of Education made appointments to the committee. Now, the county school board will also make appointments.

"I'm certainly encouraged to have the Miami Trace (school) board involved," Edwin Nestor, superintendent of the Washington C.H. School District, said Thursday. "It will add a great deal of strength to the program."

Both the county and the city school boards approved the restructuring of the committee earlier this month.

The new committee will consist of Mrs. Lee, three persons nominated by Mrs. Lee and approved by the school boards, and one member each from the respective school boards. The two superintendents, Nestor and Guy M.

Foster, will serve as non-voting committee members.

A NUMBER of other Community Education policies were discussed at the meeting. A motion was made and approved to continue with the annual "Offsides" benefit football game. All proceeds from the game go to the Community Education program and it is the program's largest fund-raising project. Last year, $3,500 was raised.

A chairman will be named shortly to plan this fall's game, which features a football contest between the mythical "Washington C.H. Offsiders" and the "Paint Creek No-Stars" and a high school band contest.

The search for a Community Education director was also discussed at Thursday night's meeting. The program has been without a director since the resignation of Hank Shaffer last October.

The advisory council has been informed that a director could be hired with federal funds through the local Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) program.

J.A. (Tony) Pack, director of the local CETA program, attended the meeting to discuss the funding. He reported that CETA would supply up to $10,000 for a director's salary.

"This (CETA funds) we think is a real boost for us," Nestor said at the meeting. He also pointed out that the federal money could only be used for a director's salary and not for funding the program itself. No tax money is used to support the Community

Strip mine restoration bill OKd

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Prospects for restoration of Ohio lands ravaged by strip mining—before the state moved to halt it—have advanced on two fronts in the legislature.

Approved 88-1 by the House and sent to the Senate on Thursday was a measure that permits the division of reclamation to aid in the restoration on privately owned lands, if erosion and drainage problems endanger public health.

By a vote of 74-13, the House completed passage of another bill creating a youth conservation corps. Its initial pilot project would be restoration of strip mined land, including privately owned tracts, in Ohio's Appalachia counties, mostly in the southeastern part of the state.

Senators, before the lawmakers adjourned until next week, voted to beef up police and other powers of township park trustees and to permit counties to expunge discharge records of military veterans, at veterans' request. Both measures go to the House, for concurrence in Senate amendments in the case of the township park bill.

House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, announced that a House vote will come next Tuesday on the state's two-year budget bill. The announcement sets the stage for a prolonged floor fight, with minority Republicans set to bitterly oppose Democratic cuts in education and other spending areas.

Rep. Arthur R. Bowers, D-98 Steubenville, chief sponsor of the strip mine reclamation bill, told the House it was needed because under present law, the only way state funds can be spent for that purpose on nonpublic lands is to purchase the land and hope for later resale.

The land affected by the bill was mined prior to Ohio's 1972 reclamation law, requiring bonds to assure restoration.

Sen. Sam Speck, D-20 New Concord, estimated earlier that there are about 370,000 acres of privately owned land throughout the state that badly need restoration, but that he understands private capital is not available.

Speck raised questions, during Senate debate a day earlier on the conservation corps bill, as to whether the Ohio Constitution permits improvements on private property at public expense.

However, Bowers explained Thursday that under his proposal, landowners would be required to reimburse the state for reclamation projects in an amount equal to the increased value of their property.

He indicated constitutional requirements could be met due to the importance to the general public of removing earth dams and other drainage problems endangering health and threatening to cause floods.

Bowers said the reclamation division plans to move this summer, if the legislation is passed, to reclaim a 30-year-old mining site in Mahoning County where water from a nearby reservoir, becoming polluted with mine acid, is needed for Youngstown's public water supply.

televised show is $5,000, and contestants can win up to $250,000 on any given week.

Reichman said he has worked for the past year in the warehouse of the McLain Grocery in Massillon as an order taker.

He said he has a few bills which he'll pay off but added that it was "too soon to tell" what else he'll do with his winnings.

However, his wife, Barbara, suggested that he might buy a house. They have two children, Tamara, 10, and Sandy, 6.

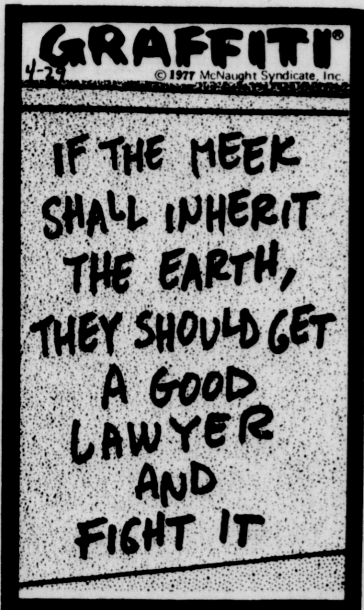

Last week's big winner, Albert Martin of Mineral Ridge, won $7,000 to add to the $55,000 he took home on his first try.

Other Pot O'Gold winners included Carol Horvath of Northfield, $8,000; Brenda Silvers, West Carrollton, $6,200; Lottie Laniecki, Wadsworth, $9,600, and Rober Carey of Adrian, Mich. $9,400.

Robert L. Summers of Millersburg won the $50,000 top prize in the weekly TV Bonus drawing.

Other winners in the drawing for losing tickets in the $1 instant game were Estil Frazier of Cleveland, $10,000; and Barb Blackburn of Youngstown, $5,000.

The following numbers were picked in the weekly Pot O'Gold number drawing: 294; 655; 53557.

Two persons have been interviewed for the director's job by the executive committee. One is David Gallagher of Washington C.H. and the other is Pack, the director of the CETA program.

However, applications for the position are still being accepted.

Now that the executive committee is being restructured with at least one new member, Gallagher and Pack will be interviewed again.

Court eyes Watergate contention

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court may give an immediate answer to attorneys for three convicted Watergate figures who want the court to weigh the impact of a news report about the justices' private deliberations on the case.

Attorneys for former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and ex-White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman asked the court Wednesday for permission to file a memorandum by May 7.

The justices might approve or turn down that request today.

The attorneys want the court to let them outline their contentions of how the report has affected their clients' rights.

The extraordinary situation was sparked by a report last week that the court had voted to deny the appeals of the three former Nixon administration officials, who were convicted in the Watergate coverup trial in January 1975.

The report by National Public Radio said that Chief Justice Warren E. Burger was delaying public announcement of the 5-3 denial vote in an effort to gain the needed fourth vote to grant review.

Such postponements are not uncommon and are the prerogative of each justice, but leaks about the court's closed deliberations are rare.

The report, if accurate, is believed to be the first time a court decision was made public before being officially announced.

Mailing list rules backed by panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — You aren't just Occupant or Resident to those bulk mailers who have you on their lists. You're an "inquisitive kid" or "a black activist" or some other type.

A government commission says you should be told before someone peddles a list with your name and "label" on it.

The Privacy Protection Study Commission is recommending that the direct mail industry set voluntary guidelines to prevent mailing lists from being sold without permission of the persons on the list.

If that doesn't work, federal and state laws may be needed later to deal with sales of mailing lists, the commission's chairman, David F. Linowes, said Thursday.

But he noted, "There are First Amendment problems in limiting communication with others."

It is common practice for organizations to sell their lists of customers, members or donors to other groups, Linowes said.

"People keep wondering, 'How did I get on that mailing list?' Well, they ought to be told," he said in a speech to a conference of the Direct Mail Marketing Association.

There is an inch-and-a-half thick catalog available to mailers giving the names of the various lists available, Linowes said. "Inquisitive kids" and "black activists" are among the titles of the lists, which give mass mailers some assurance that they are mailing their come-ons to someone who is known to be interested in a specific pitch.

"If your name is on such a list, you can get tagged forever with that sort of identification. And you probably won't even know about it," Linowes said.

Some direct mailers are beginning to send forms to those on their mailing lists allowing them to say if they don't want their name and other information about them turned over to others, he noted.

Other organizations have promised to remove any person's name from a mailing list on request.

Linowes said the commission would recommend in its report to Congress in June that such voluntary actions be expanded.

Claim U.S. pullout from Panama slated

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Information Minister Romulo Escobar Betancourt says the United States has agreed to withdraw all troops from the Panama Canal Zone by the year 2000, removing a major obstacle to a new canal treaty.

The U.S. Embassy declined to confirm the report from Escobar, who is personal adviser to Gen. Omar Torrijos, Panama's chief of government.

Escobar said he hoped the next round of negotiations, opening May 10 in Washington, would "clear away all preliminary issues and plunge into the substantive dispute such as the canal's neutrality and payment for American property to be left behind."

The U.S. government has about 9,000 servicemen stationed on 14 bases in the Canal Zone.

Escobar accused the U.S. government of "misrepresenting the cause for delays" in concluding a new treaty.

"The United States says publicly that neutrality is the most important issue in negotiations, but at the negotiating table the United States bargains just as hard over each little house and street in the Canal Zone," he said. "It is this intransigent stand that is delaying the new treaty."

"Houses and streets" referred to which parts of the zone are to revert to Panama after the signing of the new treaty. The United States has agreed that within three years of the signing, it will relinquish areas unnecessary for the operation and defense of the canal.

The U.S. government has insisted the canal be open to all nations. It also insists that it be co-guarantor of the canal's neutrality while Panama wants the United Nations to be the co-guarantor.

Cuban fishing pact seen as only step toward relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department official who negotiated new maritime treaties with Cuba predicts a "gradual but constant improvement" in relations with Fidel Castro's government.

Terence A. Todman, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, said Thursday he expects new discussions to begin soon on many other outstanding issues that divide the United States and Cuba.

While Todman secured two maritime agreements during his three-day mission to Havana, he also conferred on other issues with Cuban Foreign Minister Isidoro Malmielca. He declined to say what was discussed in the meeting.

One agreement delineates a maritime boundary halfway between the United States and Cuba. The two countries have had overlapping jurisdictions since March 1, when both extended their fisheries limits to 200 miles.

The second agreement permits Cuban fishermen to operate, consistent with the new American fisheries law, in U.S. coastal waters. It is similar to agreements already in force with 10 other fishing nations.

But there is a long list of remaining problems left unresolved and Todman said no time or place has been set for discussing them. These include Cuba's demand for an end to the long-standing U.S. trade embargo and the U.S. claim that Cuba owes compensation for $1.8 billion in American property nationalized by the Castro regime.

Todman suggested Cuba might be considering some positive steps of its own to further the move toward closer ties.

But Todman also warned that Cuban interference in the internal affairs of other countries "obviously will affect the possibility of normalization."

He added that the Cubans "seem to understand" that closer ties must be based on reciprocal gestures and not on unilateral concessions by the United States.

Stocks make new gains

NEW YORK (AP) — News of the sharpest rise in the index of leading economic indicators in 20 months helped keep the stock market moving ahead today.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up a fraction, and gainers led losers by close to a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

As trading began, the government reported that the leading indicators index climbed 1.4 per cent in March, its best showing since July of 1975.

The index is designed to point up developing trends in economic activity.

Today's prices included Occidental Petroleum, up 1/8 at 28; Mobil, up 1/4 at 65 3/4, and Gillette, unchanged at 28.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 3.56 to 927.32 after an 8.14-point gain Wednesday.

Advances outnumbered declines by a 6-5 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume slowed to 18.37 million shares from 20.59 million on Wednesday.

The NYSE's composite index rose .12 to 53.54.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .19 at 111.76.

New mosquito control

New methods of controlling insect pests continue to be developed as alternatives to chemical pesticides. One of the most interesting efforts along these lines is currently under way in California.

The target is a mosquito which transmits two serious brain inflammation diseases, one of which affects man and the other both man and horses. The goal is a drastic cut in the number of such mosquitoes.

The method - already proved in laboratory-related experiments on the Berkeley campus of the University of California - is to infiltrate "wild" mosquito populations with genetically altered males. Their abnormal sperm cells cause the deaths of developing embryos.

Irradiation of captive male mosquitoes is the key. This brings about changes in the chromosomes, which carry the heritable factors. In the present experiments, about 75 per cent of the sperm produced by irradiated males is abnormal. According to an entomologist engaged in the project, "All males of the 25 per cent that survive inherit the double abnormality" and thus "males of subsequent generations continue to carry the infertility".

Insect control programs in various parts of the country have involved putting sterile males into the field. The UC-Berkeley experiments are thought to be the first attempt in the United States to use genetically altered mosquitoes as a control weapon. This shows promise of being the most effective non-chemical method yet devised. It offers new hope that the use of chemical pesticides, many of which endanger human health and do environmental harm, can be greatly reduced.

The music of our history

1976 - the Bicentennial of our independence - was "American history year," complete with pageants, battle reenactments and symbolic absolution from Queen Elizabeth II. Now we are off to other interests, although the men who launched the War of Independence found 1777 a year of crucial testing. Indeed, a strong case can be made that the establishment of the United States

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth Sign.

SATURDAY, APRIL 30

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)
One of those days when mixing business and pleasure WILL pay off. In fact, you may make an important business contact at a social event.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)
Someone may be trying to pull the wool over your eyes. Insist on clearing up the situation. And, when you ask questions, see that you get answers, not double-talk.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)
A good day for planning next week's program. Be especially astute in mapping out budget requirements. You may be faced with some unforeseen expense.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)
Don't reveal all you know. Violating a confidence at this time - or any time, in fact - could have serious repercussions. Avoid those who would try to pry information out of you.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Your self-confidence is admirable, of course, but don't give the impression of arrogance or others will be resentful. Keep all emotions under tight control.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)
Expect some obstacles, but regard them as constructive challenges. Your intuition is now honed to razor-like sharpness, so you will know what to do at the right time.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)
Your stars highly propitious. Especially favored: romance, travel, creative and cultural interests; also family matters.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)
Don't rock the boat and don't push anything, or anyone, too far - or you'll regret it. Study causes, effects, people themselves. Use your canny judgment.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)
Be discriminating. No matter what the situation, don't judge on surface appearances only. Don't completely disregard first impressions of strangers, however.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)
Control your imagination while you also develop its tremendous potential for furthering your advancement. Don't let random ideas lead you out of bounds.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)
Your outlook not entirely auspicious. Contention may pop up in the least expected places. Exercise restraint, put forward your very best manner and good-will to counteract.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)
You may be too impressionable now. Avoid becoming involved in ticklish situations into which you could be trapped - and which could cause trouble later.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with great dignity, a remarkable memory and unusual powers of intuition. You are sensitive and imaginative; have a dry and subtle sense of humor. If you take up writing or painting - as many Taurus do - these latter traits will probably dominate your work. You can converse on a wide range of subjects and this fact, coupled with your warmth and understanding, combine to make you a delightful companion. On the negative side: You can be extremely stubborn at times; also, dogmatic in expressing opinions. Curb! Many artists, teachers, surgeons and entertainers have been Taurus-born.

of America as a sovereign state occurred because from 1775-81 British incompetence outpaced American disorganization.

What brought this to mind was a belated reading of Samuel B. Griffith's "In Defense of the Public Liberty" (Doubleday). Over a hundred books on my shelves deal with various facets of the civilization that developed on these shores in the 17th and 18th centuries and its break with England, but there has always been a fearful gap. We simply do not have a good synoptic work fitting the various pieces in place.

Or rather, we didn't: General Griffith (U.S.M.C. Ret.) has now provided a masterful description of the relations between Britain, America and other powers from 1760 to the battle of Yorktown in 1781. This is not a study of high theory, but of human beings at ground zero, warts and all. Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., once observed that facts only made sense in a proper conceptual framework. The strength of Griffith's book is his command of the conceptual music as well as the words.

To be precise, he realizes that the Americans did not, in any meaningful sense, launch a "revolution." On the contrary, they were resisting a revolutionary British attempt to deprive them of their established rights, of their "public liberty." In other words, the War of Independence was fought to prevent a revolution, to resist the imposition of British rules and regulations "foreign to our constitutions" (as Jefferson put it in the Declaration of Independence).

Americans, in short, took their freedom for granted and built a social system (slavery notably excepted) that implemented and reinforced it. All this took place while the British were looking the other way, fighting endless European wars and a civil war of their own. Thus, when the American provinces began to resist taxation in the 1760s, only a handful of Englishmen realized they were not dealing with a few rambunctious seditious-mongers, but with an entrenched social system and as talented a group of politicians as ever walked the earth.

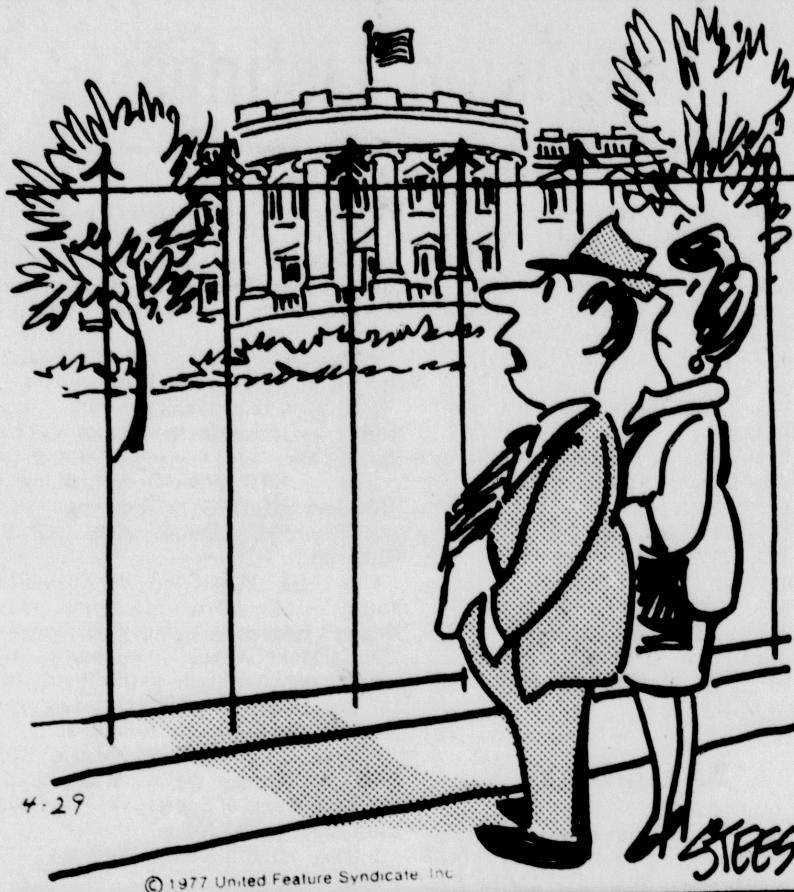

When in 1775 push came to shove, the King's ministers did everything wrong. Their first assumption was that a token show of force and the seizure of major cities would bring the Americans to their senses. The second was that the "traitors" were a small minority, that once Redcoats appeared on the scene the vast bulk of the population would rally to the Crown. To implement these promises, they sent a group of marginally competent generals off to America to pacify the place.

But the scenario was cockeyed. Maybe you won a war with a European power by occupying the population centers, but less than 5 per cent of our population was urban. The rest were farmers and, by the way, armed. So the British took Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Charlestown, Savannah for varying periods of time, but nothing much happened except they had more mouths to feed. If they sent a patrol out foraging, guns would go off behind walls and trees. Bad show.

Linked to this was the failure of the "loyal" masses to rally, to join Royal American regiments. Not only was the number of Tories small, but service in the King's American forces was a high-risk occupation: when captured by Washington's troops they were often summarily hanged, particularly in the South. Nothing went by the book, so one improvised campaign after another was laid on with disastrous results.

Not that George Washington got much rest; he had his own American problem, that anarchic streak that seems to go with the flag. Take New Hampshire's Gen. John Stark, for example: a skilled frontier fighter, he and his militia crippled Burgoyne's invasion - but they were averse to foreign travel, e.g., to defend Philadelphia. Or Col. John Sevier and his frontiersmen, who literally dropped in on the war, annihilated a British regiment at King's Mountain, N.C., and returned home!

However, what makes Griffith's study unique is the superb fashion in which he slots in diplomatic maneuvers, London attitudes, American political rivalries, and the course of the war. Read it and you will understand why in 1814, when the Duke of Wellington was asked to lead British forces, against the U.S., his reply, paraphrased, was "Never fight a land war in America."

"I WONDER IF IT'S INSULATED?"

Secretary happy with demeaning job

NEW YORK (AP) — The Women Office Workers held a contest to pick the most ridiculous personal chore performed for a boss. The only trouble was the winner didn't know she also was supposed to consider the duty demeaning.

"Gee they're going to hate me," said Mary Gustitus, 30, of Little Falls, N.J. "But I have to tell them what I think."

"I love my job and my boss is a great guy. I didn't realize these people were complaining. I didn't know all these people were anti-job," said the executive assistant, who says she gladly does everything from setting up birthday parties to tweezing gray hairs out of her boss' head at his East Orange, N.J., office.

Her entry was bringing her camera to work and taking before, during and after photos of her boss shaving his moustache.

Miss Gustitus said she entered the contest as a lark and with the help of her boss. "He helped me pick stuff out so I could enter. We sat around one day and thought of stuff that was crazy."

Other entries included cleaning the boss' false teeth and coating the boss' plants with mayonnaise.

Miss Gustitus was announced the winner at WOW headquarters Wednesday night. It marked the concluding event of Women Office Workers Day. She told those assembled at the headquarters that she didn't really agree with them and said, "If you go to work feeling like a servant you'll be one." A few of the women hissed back.

When she finished her speech, however, WOW officers thanked her for showing up and "speaking your mind."

"We didn't think people enjoyed doing demeaning personal errands," Mary Jones, WOW treasurer, said later. "We didn't specify that the people had to hate the task but we assumed they would."

Church contest brings arrest

HOLLAND, Mich. (AP) — The Calvary Baptist Church here held a contest for people who arrived for last Sunday's services using energy-saving transportation methods. And first prize went to a man who showed up in a four-wheeled pedal cart.

But another Holland resident, watching news coverage of the event on television, recognized the prize-winning cart. It had been stolen from him.

Police said the pedal-cart has been returned to its owner, who is considering whether to press charges against the man, who won a Bible.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Can't stand sound of late wife's bird

DEAR ABBY: Last year, around this time, my wife and I would be awakened every morning by a mockingbird who sat on the wire behind our house singing its heart out.

My wife just loved that bird. She even recorded his singing and played it back often.

Now my dear wife is dead, and that bird is back, and every morning when I awake the sound of that mockingbird, it brings back memories that just break my heart.

I love all God's creatures just as my lovely wife did, but I must either destroy that bird or I will surely go out of my mind.

I tried to shoo it away, but it comes back every morning. Is there another way to get rid of it?

DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: Please don't destroy that bird. Your wife would have wanted it to live a full life. Perhaps some kind of scarecrow will do the trick. If there's another way, I'm sure my bird lovers will write in and let me know.

DEAR ABBY: In your column, which I read each day with amusement, you refer quite often to husbands who are philanderers.

Did it ever occur to you that these fellows are that way because they have a Frigidaire in the kitchen and a "Frigid Dear" in the bedroom?

"COULD BE"

DEAR "COULD": There's no such thing as a "Frigid Dear"—only clumsy men.

DEAR ABBY: I had a terrible experience yesterday and I would like your opinion.

I was shopping in a department store when a saleslady offered to help me. I said, "Thank you, I'm just looking," and then I proceeded to look at some sale merchandise out on the counter, and the saleslady disappeared.

I found several things I wanted, but the salesperson who had approached me was nowhere in sight, so since I was in a hurry, I handed my merchandise to another salesperson who was standing near me.

Suddenly, No. 1 saleslady appeared, and when she saw No. 2 writing up my sale, she ran to her, tore my merchandise out of her hand and said, "She was MY customer!"

Then No. 2 gave No. 1 a shove, and it soon developed into a hair-pulling brawl! Other store personnel came running, and it took two women and a man to separate them.

What I want to know is this: Just because that saleslady offered to help me, did that make me "her" customer?

Nobody really waited on me. I found what I wanted myself.

STILL SHOOK

DEAR SHOOK: Her offer of help did NOT make you "her" customer, and since she was nowhere in sight to write up the sale, it was your right to ask another sales person to do so.

Controversy continues over sex discrimination in church

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A growing aggregation of Roman Catholic groups are challenging the Vatican's insistence that only males are eligible for the priesthood and that women must be kept out of it.

In the midst of the rising dissent, the issue once more is before the Church's U.S. bishops.

They're expected to echo the Vatican's position at their meeting in Chicago, May 3-5, rejecting a call from a national Catholic assembly that the bishops support a change allowing ordination of women.

The appeal was among many made by the Church's historic "call to action" conference in Detroit last fall, the first Church-wide gathering of official diocesan delegations. It handed the bishops a raft of proposals.

But the widest discussion was focused on the women's issue, a concern heightened by the Vatican's declaration Jan. 27 that women can't be priests because Jesus was a man and priests must have that "natural resemblance."

In the wake of that declaration, reaffirming the Church's age-old rule against women priests, there have been spreading repercussions of disagreement — in words and actions.

Theologians have dissented. Nuns and other women's groups have protested and demonstrated. Petitions have been relayed to the Pope. Representatives of the country's priests have urged admission of women to their ranks.

In an "open letter" to the Pope's U.S. representative, all but two of the 25-member faculty of the Jesuit School of Theology in Berkeley, Calif., called the Vatican declaration a "serious mistake," misrepresenting Scripture and Church tradition.

The "sacramental sign necessary" to represent Christ "is to be located within the human person, rather than within masculine or feminine sexuality," the theology professors said.

They added that "exclusion of women from priestly ordination in our day does not reinforce 'the image of Christ' for a growing number of people, but rather symbolizes sexual discrimination within the Church."

The National Federation of Priests' Councils, representing most of the country's priests, also registered disagreement with the Vatican declaration.

At their annual meeting in Louisville, Ky., in March, they urged U.S. bishops and Pope Paul VI to remove the Church laws prohibiting the ordaining of women.

Eight national sisters' organizations, involving a big proportion of the country's 131,000 nuns, issued a joint statement calling for further consideration of the matter.

The statement termed the Vatican declaration disappointing, but added, "We are not without hope."

Earlier, the "Women's Ordination Conference," carrying on its drive launched in 1975 for admission of women to the priesthood, sponsored prayer vigils and other demonstrations in that cause at cathedrals in several major cities.

"If we cannot represent Christ in the priesthood, I wonder if we can represent Christ at all," said Sister Rosaria Salerno of Boston.

The conference, which set up offices in Washington, D.C., began a Church-wide survey in April to collect details on Catholic women seeking ordination. An estimated 500 Catholic women now are enrolled in seminaries.

Bishops generally have supported the Vatican declaration, but say it does not foreclose discussion. As for the general Catholic attitudes, surveys indicate only 30 per cent of the laity favors admitting women to the priesthood.

Church-goers integrate

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Almost half of American white churchgoers now worship with at least some blacks in the congregations, five times more than 25 years ago.

Additionally, a strong majority of whites would like for their congregations to include more blacks.

These are among indications of a new Gallup poll, compared with past studies.

The poll found that 46 per cent of whites attend churches with some black members, while a slight majority, 54 per cent, still are in all-white congregations. A 1952 study indicated that only 9.8 per cent of the nation's mainly white congregations included blacks.

In the new survey, the continuing reduced extent of de facto segregation was attributed to residential patterns, to pride of blacks in preserving their own churches and persisting remnants of prejudice.

Nevertheless, two-thirds of all whites nationally, including both those already worshipping with some blacks and those who don't, want more blacks among co-worshippers.

The proportion is highest, North and South, among whites already associated with some blacks in church life, with 80 per cent of such whites outside the South and 63 per cent of such Southern whites favoring more blacks in weekly services.

The only category of whites in which a majority — 60 per cent — oppose it are Southerners in congregations without black members and no experience of worshipping with them.

AME activities

The women of Roger's Chapel AME Church are sponsoring several projects for Women's Day, May 29. Chicken pies have been sold and a car wash is planned. A Little Miss Contest is in progress at present. The contestants are Lynette Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Evans, and Taniaka Lee, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elding Lee. Tickets to the contest may be purchased from parents and friends who are members of AME Church.

Breast cancer cause for concern in women across the country

Breast cancer has caused a great amount of concern among women in recent years. Nearly one out of 13 women will be affected by it.

Breast cancer is the most common form of cancer in women and it also occurs occasionally in men. Although it is the leading cause of death among women age 40 to 44, and second leading cause of death for other age groups, the survival rate is 85 per cent to 90 per cent when found early. This is the key. If cancer is detected and treated before it spreads to lymph nodes it can be highly curable.

Regular breast examinations can be performed by private physicians or at the Cervical Cancer Screening Clinic which is sponsored by the Fayette County Health Department as a part of the National Cancer Institute Cervical Cancer Screening Project grant implemented through the Ohio Department of Health.

In addition to the pap test administered for cervical cancer at the clinic, women receive a pelvic and breast examination, height and weight determination, blood pressure check, urine testing for sugar and albumin, hemoglobin check, and a complete health history. Instructions in breast self-examination and counseling for problems or conditions that might arise are provided.

Another feature of the clinic is the colon screening test which is devised to detect the presence of occult blood in the stool. This part of the program is being paid for by a grant from the American Cancer Society. These services are available to any woman over 16 who has not had a pap test in over one year, particularly women who are without periodic medical care and are over the child-bearing age.

An annual breast examination is not enough. In order to detect any changes early, the breast must be examined once a month by every woman. Ninety-five per cent of breast lumps are discovered by women themselves. There are many reasons for lumps to occur, and about 75 per cent to 80 per cent are not due to cancer. All women should examine their breasts at the same time every month to look for any changes from the previous month.

Breast self-examination involves observation of the breasts in a mirror and examination of the breasts in the shower or bath and also while lying down.

Since the inception of the program, the Fayette County Health Department has held three Breast, Cervical and Colon Cancer, Screening Clinics with 75 women participating in the program to date. The clinic has been staffed by Dr. Abdiel Lorente, a practicing surgeon, the Fayette County Health Department staff, and Mrs. Corrine Sperry, R.N., a volunteer.

Clinics are held on the first and third Wednesdays of each month at the Fayette County Health Department, from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. Anyone interested in information regarding the clinic or an appointment should call 335-5910.

Remember, cancer can be cured if found in time. Women, take a few minutes of your time each month to do breast self-examination. See your family physician or visit our Cancer Screening Clinic and have a yearly pap smear. Don't delay!

May Fellowship to be observed in First Presbyterian Church

Mrs. Harmon Welty, president of the local Church Women United, has announced that May Fellowship Day will be observed May 6 by CWU in First Presbyterian Church in Washington C.H. at 1:30 p.m.

The Women's Association of First Presbyterian Church will present the program with Mrs. John P. Case at the organ. Guest soloist will be Mrs. Edwin Thompson, accompanied by Mrs. Gerald Wheat.

The Least Coin offering from the participating churches will be dedicated at this celebration.

Since the first May Fellowship Day in 1933, it has been traditional for church women to come together on the first Friday in May to emphasize the creative and healing relations that are possible among people in the 2,000 communities where CWU is organized in local units.

The theme for this year's service, "Gifts to Claim," carries the strong implication of the freedom to choose between the gift of extravagance, which is part of God's grace; the gift that enables all to risk vulnerability, God's gift of faith; and the gift of mutuality, which is part of God's love.

Maple Grove Women knot comforters

An all-day luncheon meeting and workshop was held by the Maple Grove United Methodist Women Wednesday in the home of Mrs. John Rowland. Mrs. Neil Rowland gave the invocation preceding the noon meal, and at 2 p.m. the business session was brought to order by the president. She also read "Wearing Our Faith on Our Sleeves."

Mrs. Roy Gilmer gave prayer for the missionaries having birthdays and told of having visited the Upper Room Museum at Nashville, Ky.

Mrs. Harold Craven's devotions consisted of Scripture, a hymn and prayer.

The program of the "Week of Prayer and Self-Denial" was presented by Mrs. Michael Ball. The group sang "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee," and "Now Thank We All Our God," with Mrs. Rowland at the piano.

Mrs. Craven read "Now Don't Push Out by Pushing," and a poem concerning United Methodist Women. Mrs. Wilbur Chaplin explained where money was used and a collection was made for this, and Mrs. Ball offered prayer.

Nine members answered roll call with an Easter thought. New members welcomed were Mrs. Burke Kearney, Mrs. Gene Rowland and Mrs. Roger Rowland. Prayer partners were revealed and new ones drawn.

Members reporting on the "cluster" meeting recently attended at the White Oak Grove United Methodist Church were Mrs. Marion Dawson, Mrs. John Rowland, Mrs. Neil Rowland, Mrs. Wilbur Chaplin, Mrs. Harold Craven and Mrs. Locie Eckle.

It was announced that the "Good News Singers" of Maple Grove Church will present a concert at the church on May 7.

A bouquet of spring flowers, a praying ceramic angel, an open Bible and a copy of the Irish Blessing. The remainder of the time was spent knotting comforters. Present were Mrs. Neil Rowland, Mrs. Eckle, Mrs. Clyde Carman, Mrs. Roy Gilmer, Mrs. Chaplin, Mrs. Dawson, Mrs. Craven, Mrs. Ball and the hostess, Mrs. John Rowland.

INTERNATIONAL FLAVOR — Community support for the AFS International Fiesta Supper at Washington Senior High School Sunday, April 24, was extremely good. Guests enjoyed a wonderful meal and fine entertainment and many asked that the festivities be held again next year.

International supper a success at Washington Senior High

The International Fiesta Supper at Washington Senior High School hosted a large crowd on Sunday. Two internationally flavored menus were enjoyed by everyone in attendance, and were prepared by Mrs. Starley Knedler and her staff of very able assistants, aided by many students and adults in the American Field Service chapters. Mrs. Knedler and all her assistants gave their hours of skills and talents voluntarily and were the real reason the dinner was such a success. Mrs. Starley Knedler, Mrs. Jack Armstrong, Mrs. Daniel Bell, Mrs. Dale Coil, Mrs. Doris Cox, Mrs. Alfred Dixon, Mrs. Walter Henk, Mrs. David Lucas, Mrs. Harold Speelman, and Mrs. Charles Wright worked very hard to prepare all the delicious food and are surely appreciated for their fine effort. Each was presented a blue and white corsage.

Students from the AFS club served the food to guests and provided the entertainment. Singing a French song were Toni Conley, Lynn Fichner, and Sue Stapleton, accompanied on the guitar by Jean Winiger, AFS exchange student at WSHS from Switzerland; singing a Spanish song was LeTonda Bailey, accompanied by Jean Winiger; and performing a cultural dance from Colombia was Patty Ullola, AFS exchange student at MTHS from the South American country of Colombia. Student servers were: Jo and Lu Brown, Libby Brown, Mike Cleary, Joni Copeland, Pam Curtis, Linnie Harper, Debbie Highfield, Susan Ingram, Gina Langen, Lana McCoy, Kristy Minshall, Betsy Owen, Nancy Penwell, Susan Pommert, Tammy Pope, Kathy Prysiazniak, Tammy Schneider, Debbie Srofe, Kelly Steele, Natalie Upthegrove, Teresa Ward, Brenda Wonderleigh.

Advisors Mrs. Alex Luque and Mrs. Philip French greatly appreciate the help given them by everyone and look forward to another successful dinner next year.

Founders' Day is observed

Members of Zeta Upsilon met at the Terrace Lounge for the Founder's Day observance and installation of officers. Entertainment was by the Miami Trace Folksingers.

A scrapbook and president's pin was presented to Mrs. Don Jones, outgoing president. She presented officers pins to last year's Board members. A charm was presented to Mrs. Charles Bowersox for being the 'best outside speaker' and a charm to Mrs. Warren

Huber for having the 'best program.' Guests and members present were Mrs. James Coldiron, member-at-large, Mrs. Ralph Dolan, Mrs. Jack Elliott, Mrs. Willis Geyer Jr., Mrs. Doug Grubb, Mrs. Bruce Houghton, Mrs. Bill Coil, Mrs. Robert Knecht, Mrs. Steve Lewis, Mrs. Robert Snodgrass, Mrs. Bill Tippitt, Mrs. Robert Wilson and Mrs. Eric Halverson.

Esther Circle holds meeting

Eight members of the Esther Circle of the Jeffersonville United Methodist Church met in the home of Mrs. Leo Wilt Wednesday. Mrs. Fred Dement, leader, read "Day by Day," by Billy Graham. Reports were heard and correspondence acknowledged.

It was announced that Mrs. George Reedy will be hostess for May, and Mrs. Nelson Baker will be hostess for an evening picnic in June, with the husbands as guests.

Mrs. Harold Zimmerman presented various readings which included "Order of the Universe," by Billy Graham; "Green Pea Pod" by Helen Steiner Rice; "Windows of Gold," "Mathusla's Plan," "Bumblebees Can't Fly," and "We Girls." A silent auction followed during the social hour, and Mrs. Wilt served refreshments.

Officers investigate four traffic mishaps

A 16-year-old Washington C.H. girl was cited for reckless operation following a two-car collision Thursday at the intersection of Washington Avenue and Elm Street.

Dee A. Richardson, who resides at Apt. 11, Heritage Court, reportedly lost control of her auto while making a left turn onto Washington Avenue. The Washington C.H. Police Department reported that her vehicle struck a pickup truck which was waiting at the intersection's traffic light. The truck was driven by Larry L. Patterson, 30, New Holland.

Neither driver was injured in the mishap, but Ms. Richardson also received a citation for driving without an operator's license.

Three other minor traffic accidents were reported Thursday by area law enforcement agencies.

POLICE
THURSDAY, 2:35 p.m.—A refuse truck rolled down an incline, crossed the News Plaza alley and struck a building owned by Charles Pensyl, 613 S. Main St.

The driver of the truck, Robert E.

Beedy, 51, of 1510 N. North St., told police officers that he had parked the truck in neutral behind the Downtown Drug Co. store and set the emergency brake. The brake apparently failed to hold and the truck struck the building causing minor damage to the structure.

4:30 p.m. — Cars driven by Robert J. Reed Jr., 28, of 707 Peabody Ave., and Kenneth W. Amsbary, 37, of 403 N. North St., collided on E. Market Street.

Reed was reportedly pulling from a service station lot near the Lewis Street intersection and did not see Amsbary's vehicle which was traveling west on Market Street. Neither driver was injured.

SHERIFF

THURSDAY, 11:45 a.m. — A truck driven by David L. Abernathy, 23, Mount Sterling, went out of control on the Miami Trace Road near the Glendon-Arnold Road and struck two rods of fence owned by William Kramer of Chillicothe.

Abernathy told sheriff's deputies that he was rounding a curve when he applied his brakes and lost control. He was not injured.

Injured person report checked

The Washington C.H. Police Department investigated an injured person incident involving a butcher knife Thursday.

Stanley G. Seymour, 12, of 417 W. Temple St., received a laceration to the lower back after he was accidentally struck with the knife Wednesday. The incident was not reported to police officers until Seymour was treated for the wound at a local physician's office Thursday morning.

The boy's mother, Lena Seymour, reported that her son was cutting carpet with the knife on the front porch of the residence when his older sister told him to give her the knife. The boy reportedly set the knife down and ran. His sister said she then picked up the knife to scare her brother and the knife slipped and struck him in the lower back.

The injury was not believed to be serious.

No air conditioning for Carter

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has brought a breath of fresh air to the White House — by cutting down on air conditioning.

Thermostats in offices in the west wing of the White House have been set so energy-cooled air is not piped in until the temperature tops 80 degrees.

Many thermostats have been covered with locked plastic hoods to prevent tampering. Trusted employees can be identified by lock-free thermostats in their offices.

Even those put on their honor are observing the new rules, with the result that on the first warm days of spring, Carter aides scurried to open office windows.

Alas, so many years passed since such drastic sacrifices were required that most windows were found to be painted shut.

While officials shucked jackets, workers were summoned to do their hammer-and-chisel best to pry open recalcitrant windows. For a few days they made more noise than the pesky starlings that roost in White House trees.

Carter was asked how he was coping with his stuffy environment.

"It's not as hot as the peanut fields in Georgia," he replied.

Energy concerns also have forced abandonment of a practice popularized by the resigned President Richard M. Nixon. Nixon liked to sit by a log fire in his office fireplace while the air conditioning system worked overtime to dissipate the resulting heat.

Keeping fires blazing on summer days became something of a status symbol for Nixon aides with fireplaces. The practice was continued by some assistants to former President Gerald R. Ford.

Carter himself displayed a fondness for log fires during the cold of last winter. That's a thing of the past. Now he has taken to holding some of his conferences and business lunches on an outdoor patio near his office.

The Carter aide who probably keeps coolest, summer or winter, is Hamilton Jordan, who is known simply as "Jordan" back home in Georgia. He rarely wears either a jacket or necktie.

When Jordan appeared in a White House corridor Monday wearing both a jacket and a tie, a State Department protocol officer quipped, "He must have heard the king of Jordan was coming."

As it happened, Jordan's uncharacteristic elegance coincided with the arrival at the White House of King Hussein.

Jordan, a Carter camp celebrity long before moving to Washington, became more-than-ever talked about after a gossip column in the Washington Post alleged that he never wears undershorts.

A few days later, a reporter found Jordan's secretary sitting at a desk covered with underwear of various colors, sizes and styles — gifts from the reading public.

Bill defeated on headlight use

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State representatives have defeated 51-39 a bill which would have required motorists to have their lights turned on when rain and snow was falling or while driving through fog.

Opponents said generally Thursday that the bill wasn't needed, and could result in accident liability being placed on one driver when the other clearly was at fault.

Rep. Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville, pointed out that present law requires lights to be turned on when visibility is limited to less than 1,000 feet.

He said the ill-fated bill by Rep. Kenneth A. Rocco, D-7 Cleveland, could make "unwitting criminals of the unsuspecting."

Rocco said his bill would place "objective standards" into the law rather than have motorists speculate about loosely defined situations which require lights to be burning.

Ohio Weather Story

By The Associated Press

A strong ridge of high pressure over the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley is moving southeast, forcing much cold air out of Ohio, but the return to more spring-like weather won't be apparent before Saturday afternoon.

The lows tonight are expected to be in the 30s except in the upper 20s to low 30s in east central and southeastern Ohio. It will be warmer Saturday with increasing cloudiness southeast and mostly sunny skies over the remainder of the state. The highs Saturday will be in the upper 60s and low 70s.

Temperatures dropped to record lows in all areas of Ohio last night with above freezing readings only in the extreme southern counties.

Sunday through Tuesday: Fair and mild Sunday and Monday. A chance of showers Tuesday. Highs in the 70s and lows in the 40s and lower 50s.

Fertilizer supplies larger

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supplies of agricultural fertilizer are substantially larger than they were a year ago, according to the Agriculture Department.

Measured on a net weight of actual plant nutrient, the department said Thursday that about 21.8 million tons of nitrogen, phosphate and potash are available for the 1976-77 fertilizer marketing year that will end June 30.

The tonnage is up 5 per cent from last year's supply and is 7 per cent more than farmers had available in 1973-74, when prices skyrocketed. Thus, according to the report, issued by USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, much more fertilizer is available for 1977 crop production.

Officials said that estimated supplies of nitrogen total nearly 10.9 million tons, up 5 per cent from last season and 15 per cent more than two years ago.

"Curtailement of natural gas supplies for anhydrous ammonia plants may reduce production (of nitrogen) by about 750,000 tons or about half a million tons more than was lost last year," the report said.

Phosphate supplies were estimated at about 5.3 million tons, up 4 per cent from a year ago, but 7 per cent less than two years ago.

Carter set for fight over energy issues

By FRANK CROMIER

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is described as "ready, very much so," for months of heated congressional debate on energy and other volatile issues because he is a political professional "who knows how to get things done."

This was the assessment of Bert Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget, as the first major debate of the Carter presidency — over energy policy — was getting under way.

And looking back over the first 100 days of the Carter presidency, Lance, one of Carter's long-time governmental partners and proteges here and in Atlanta, was reminded of a Carter campaign statement that "I want to be tested in the most severe way."

"He's ready, very much so," Lance said in a telephone interview. He said Carter is particularly ready to be tested on energy because he enters the debate with a "deep sense of commitment" that favorable action on his blueprint is essential.

There is near-universal agreement in Washington that the unveiling last week of Carter's controversial, many-faceted energy blueprint marked a turning point for the new administration — away from a "honeymoon" period and toward long months of intensive jockeying over the nuts and bolts of government.

Asked if he believes Carter is prepared for the energy compromises that many observers regard as inevitable, Lance declined to embrace the premise that major compromises can be expected. But he asserted:

"First of all, the evidence speaks for itself. He's an awfully good politician. He knows how to get things done. He might not call himself a trader, but he knows where he wants to go and how he intends to get there."

Hamilton Jordan, a key Carter assistant, acknowledges that with the end of the first 100 days there has been a turning point in Carter's relations with Congress and the people, brought about by the President's energy proposals.

While he said there has been no change of attitude or mood at the White House, Carter aides were pleased that at this point "a lot of plans are ready to be translated into policy and legislation."

Energy issues are only part of what promises to be a marathon test of Carter's ability to implement sweeping campaign pledges to simplify the tax system, revise welfare programs and prune the federal bureaucracy — all questions that will be ready for congressional debate by the end of this year.

Consciously, Carter set out in his first 100 days to gird himself for the battles ahead by successfully campaigning to elevate his own popularity rating, recorded at a lofty 72 per cent in the most recent Gallup Poll. In the process, he has come close to elevating political symbolism into an art form.

In Carter's view, symbolism and substance are inseparable, with the latter flowing from the former.

If wearing sweaters, holding "town meetings" and mothballing chauffeured government limousines helped to make him popular and enhanced an image of trustworthiness, Carter is convinced his opportunities for dealing successfully with tough problems are correspondingly increased.

As he told some visiting journalists last month:

"The authority and the power and leadership capabilities of any president are derived almost completely from the support that I have from the people of the country."

Lance recalled that Carter's efforts as governor to reorganize the Georgia bureaucracy were the biggest drag on his popularity in that state.

Asked if impending reorganization battles here were likely to yield a similar result, Lance said he thought the opposite might occur.

Although the budget chief said reorganization plans, which will start flowing from the White House in June, will mightily upset a wide range of special interest groups, he expressed the view that there is a broad national demand for reorganization.

In that situation, he said, Carter may actually enhance his national constituency.

Carter's constituency was slim indeed when he entered office, having collected a bare 51 per cent of last November's votes. From the outset, in his inaugural address, the new president moved to appeal for broader support, saying:

"You have given me a great responsibility — to stay close to you, to be worthy of you, and to exemplify what you are."

So he walked to his new home from that ceremony, rationed renditions of "Hail to the Chief," avoided limousines that looked like limousines, held a fireside chat, starred in his own radio call-in show, revived regular news conferences and enrolled daughter Amy in a public school.

Richard E. Neustadt, Harvard professor and author of "Presidential Power," told The Associated Press in early February that he was optimistic Carter could make a success of such uses of symbolism, although acknowledging, "it's going to be very hard to keep it from ... appearing phony or falling of its own weight." Neustadt added:

"If gestures — these symbolic statements — are arresting, noticeable, widely approved and popular, they will widen your mandate ... Voters don't pass bills, but the climate that's created makes an enormous difference."

Jimmy Carter obviously agrees. Taking note of his 70-plus approval rating, he predicted last month that his energy program would cause him to "lose 10 or 15 per cent of that." But he added, "I'm willing to give up some of my own personal popularity among the people of this country to require them to face the brutal facts" about dwindling supplies of oil and natural gas.

The question is: Would Carter show a similar willingness to spend his political capital if he still could claim no more than 51 per cent approval?

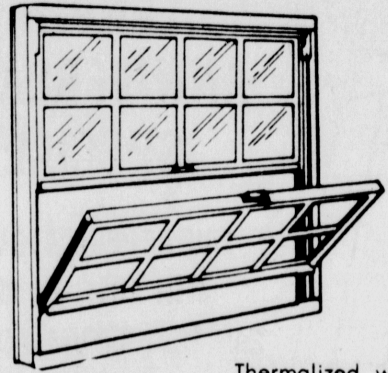

That's the real nub of Carter's argument that symbolism and substance have partnership roles in making successful presidential leadership possible.

Of course, performance also figures in the President's equation. He has said it is important that Americans see him as a man who will do what he promises.

After the election, Carter had his staff compile his campaign commitments in book form, as a reminder to himself. Acknowledged to be incomplete, it lists 645 separate "promises."

If Carter is to make good on all of them, he must, on the average, fulfill a different promise every 2 1/4 days during the balance of his term.

Two years after U.S. departure

EDITOR'S NOTE — Two years ago, on April 30, 1975, Communist forces entered Saigon, and American troops and civilians as well as tens of thousands of Vietnamese fled the fallen nation. What has happened since then in the former capital of South Vietnam? In this dispatch, an AP correspondent who covered the war in Vietnam tells of the "new" Saigon he found during a recent visit there.

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON, Vietnam (AP) — The old U.S. Embassy stands vacant, guarded by a solitary policeman. Former President Nguyen Van Thieu's palace is a museum and a sightseeing must for the curious. Abandoned American aircraft rot at the airport.

The Continental Hotel, once a favorite gathering spot for Americans, is now the Simultaneous Uprising Hotel.

Two years after the Communist victory on April 30, and the flight of Americans, everything — yet nothing — has changed in Saigon.

The new unified government has renamed it Ho Chi Minh City but it still remains what it was during the war: tawdry, dirty, quieter, perhaps, but still a place with something to sell — for a price.

A carton of American cigarettes costs the equivalent of $120 if Vietnamese dong are bought at the official rate of 50 cents each. The same carton costs $24 if dong are bought on the black market, where they can be had for 10 cents each.

Tan Son Nhut Airport was the first change noted by a correspondent who returned to Vietnam after two years with a group of Australian and other foreign tourists. The correspondent had identified himself as an Associated Press correspondent to the Vietnamese authorities in applying to join the group.

The airport once was the busiest in Asia, with U.S. jet fighters, helicopters and transports loading, landing and taking off in what seemed intervals of only seconds.

Now the parking bays are filled with dozens of U.S. helicopters, C7 Caribous, C130 transports and spotter planes, many of them wrecked by Communist rockets during the final days of the war. There are no guards, pilots, airmen or people of any kind in sight.

But workmen are busily finishing the international terminal, started with U.S. aid money several years ago and now almost complete, down to Swiss digital clocks, German pay telephones and French television screens to announce the arrivals and departures if and when Saigon opens up again to world travel.

At the Continental Palace terrace, known as the Continental Shelf to the Americans and other foreigners who drank there, only coffee and ice cream are now served.

Up To Do street, the chic stores display Pierre Cardin ties, Coty perfume, Du Pont lighters and Rayban sunglasses. But stocks are getting low and there are blank spaces in the windows.

All the French restaurants are closed. The last of the Corsican proprietors left several months ago.

Along the Saigon River, where two years ago people were dying in their scramble to escape before the Communists took over, all is quiet, even serene. Young couples stroll hand in hand along the sidewalk.

Groups of farmers, peasants and schoolchildren and foreign visitors are given guided tours of the gray-colonnaded Independence Palace, Thieu's former headquarters across the street from the U.S. Embassy.

"This is where Thieu used to meet important people, like U.S. Ambassador (Graham) Martin," said the guide ushering us into the Thieu's private office. "This is where Martin and his advisers sat in specially made chairs. This is Thieu's desk. Note that it is raised up on a platform so he could be higher than anyone else."

Visitors are told that Thieu slept with six feet of sandbags on his bedroom roof.

The Ho Chi Minh City Tourism Company also organizes tours to the former U.S. military warden's compound at Le Qui Don and Vo Tanh streets. Now it is the U.S. and Puppet Government War Crimes Museum. On the surface, life in Saigon seems relaxed.

Three-man squads of soldiers carrying AK47 rifles are seen occasionally. But few buildings are guarded, and most soldiers in the streets are unarmed, apparently on leave. Saigonese say the soldiers are polite and don't cause trouble.

Foreign tourists are allowed to roam the city at will, but Saigonese are cautious when talking to them. They look over their shoulder at the door if they are alone with a foreigner.

The Communists are coming to grips with the economic system in the South and things could get tougher.

"We estimate it will take us three years to eliminate the free market in the south," said a North Vietnamese party worker.

In a bar on Tu Do street, a girl speaking American-accented English complained about the new government and the effect it was having on her bargirl business.

"They'll never send me to the new lands to build monkey house out of bamboo," she said referring to the unsettled or abandoned New Economic Zones in the countryside to which many South Vietnamese are having to move. "No way, honey. I'm gonna get out of here."

COLLEGE COMMUTER—Art Dick Jr., of Mount Sterling, drives 90 miles daily to attend classes at Wilmington College where he is a junior majoring in production agriculture. In addition to carrying 15 to 16 academic hours, he does much of the work on the family farm near Mount Sterling.

At Wilmington College

Mount Sterling student travels 90 miles per day to get degree

WILMINGTON, Ohio — Art Dick Jr., of Mount Sterling, is a Wilmington College student who is doing a lot of traveling to get his degree.

Art, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Art D. Dick Sr., drives a total of 90 miles each day from his farm home near Mount Sterling to the campus in Wilmington and back home again.

"I only missed two days last winter because of snow-blocked roads," Art explained.

"In general, the 45-mile one-way drive takes me about an hour."

Art is a junior at Wilmington College, majoring in production agriculture. In addition to carrying a normal 15 to 16 academic hour study load, he does much of the work on the family farm.

"We own 100 acres and rent an additional 300," he said.

Growing corn and soybeans, plus carrying a registered Angus breeding herd, are the Dick family's primary agricultural pursuits. The Wilmington College student does much of the work on the farm and in addition, last year he custom harvested an additional 300 acres for other farmers and this year he is renting 60 acres for his own use.

He plans to be married in June, to Kim Finch who also is from the Mount Sterling area. He and Kim will live on a small farm while Art will continue to work his family acres.

"And I also will continue to commute to Wilmington College," he added.

"I came to Wilmington College after graduating from Westfall High School in Pickaway County because I wanted to major in agriculture but I didn't want to go to a large university."

"Wilmington has a fully-accredited, four-year program in agriculture and it is small and can give a student individual attention.

"You're not just a number at Wilmington, and I like that."

After receiving his Wilmington College degree, Art will either continue working on the family farm or in an agriculturally-related field, like sales.

At Wilmington College Art played football his freshman year and won a varsity letter, but gave the sport up after that.

"Studying and working on the farm keep me too busy," he said.

He also is a member of the Janizaries, a men's social fraternity on campus. He lived in a college dormitory his freshman year but found he was spending so much time going to the farm on weekends that he decided to live at home and commute during his sophomore year.

"Commuting isn't bad," he observed.

"I'm getting a good education at the college of my choice while still living and working at home. And the money I save by not having to pay campus room and board easily covers my gasoline and lunch costs."

Brown backs jobless pay for teachers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Public school teachers and employees out of work more than 15 days because of this winter's energy crisis would be able to seek unemployment compensation, according to an opinion issued by Atty. Gen. William J. Brown.

The attorney general's staff says, however, that employees who apply for payments should be dealt with on a case-by-case basis.

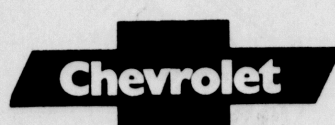

Albert G. Giles, administrator of the Bureau of Employment Services, had asked Brown to interpret a new state law, effective Feb. 3, that decreased the number of days schools must be open to be entitled to state aid.

Amended Senate Bill 51, in response to this winter's fuel shortage and associated massive school closings, allows schools to be closed more days than normal without losing state aid.

Giles asked how the bill would affect his bureau if school workers filed for unemployment compensation because of days off without pay.

Brown's staff said that the Senate bill calls for teachers to be paid by their districts during the first 15 days of closings. Brown said that after that period the teachers might be in line for unemployment checks if they could prove their case on an individual basis.

Brown's opinion, issued last month, further stated that the first 15-day period need not be made up of 15 consecutive days.

Timely tips for yard, garden

More lawn fertilizer suggested

By JOHN P. GRUBER
County Extension Agent, Agriculture
May is just around the corner, and among other things to be done its time to give the lawn another shot of fertilizer.

A lot of folks have mixed emotions about fertilizing lawns. No doubt it makes the grass grow faster and that requires more frequent mowing. However, don't expect to have a good lawn unless you supply it with adequate nutrients. A regular fertilization program will help to keep the grass growing and keep weeds out.

To determine the exact needs of your lawn you might want to take a soil test. Generally a lawn needs to be fertilized with nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium. Your soil test results will help to choose a fertilizer with the correct ratio.

The label on the fertilizer bag lists the percentage of nitrogen (N), phosphorus (P), and potassium (K). A one hundred pound bag of 20-10-10 contains 20 pounds N, 10 pounds P, and 10 pounds K. A fertilizer such as this contains plant nutrients in a ratio of two parts of nitrogen, one part of phosphorus, and one part of potassium. So does a 10-5-5. But the difference is that the 10-5-5 only contains half as much fertilizer value as the 20-10-10 per equal weight.

If you do not have a soil test you'll be in the ball park with a material containing a 3-1-2 or a 3-1-1 ratio. The ratio need not be exact, but should be close. For example a 20-8-8 lawn fertilizer is close to a 3-1-1 ratio.

For a common Kentucky Bluegrass and similar types of lawn a regular fertilizer program would include the following, September 1-15, apply two pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet in a complete fertilizer of a 3-1-1 or 3-1-2 ratio. In May, June, and July, apply one-half of that amount.

Using the previous example of 20-10-10 material, you would need to apply 10 pounds of fertilizer per thousand square feet to get two pounds of actual nitrogen. Using a 10-5-5 material would require 20 pounds of fertilizer per thousand square feet to equal two pounds of actual nitrogen.

Keep in mind that fertilizer applied improperly can burn your lawn. To prevent fertilizer burn: Never apply more than two pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet; spread uniformly avoiding over lap and spills, apply only when grass is dry and water (or hope of rain) after application.

You'll have to mow more often, but your lawn will be greener and will compete more readily with the weed crop.

Speaking of weed crops, have you thought about using a mulch for weed control in the garden. Mulches such as black plastic film, clean straw, sawdust, or peat, properly applied, are most valuable in weed control.

The mulch will also reduce the amount of soil water evaporation and thus conserve moisture during dry spells. The time to apply the mulch is when the soil has warmed up for good root growth.

If you use an organic material such as sawdust or peat, apply the mulch at least two to three inches deep over the whole area. This will help to reduce, eliminate, or at least retard weed growth.

Flower buds for next spring can be retained by pruning spring flowering shrubs shortly after this year's bloom is gone.

Free seeds available

Green Scene starting again

Mrs. G. Arden's Green Scene is starting. Youth from the first to eighth grades are invited to join the scene.

Young people interested in contributing to the family food supply can start a garden with free seeds. The youth can pick up seeds, and Mrs. G. Arden's Instruction Book, by stopping by the Fayette County Extension Office May 2-6 before 5 p.m. at 319 S. Fayette St.

The seeds, donated by Fayette Landmark, Inc., and Moore's Fruit Market, include Lazy Leafy Lettuce, Orville Onion, Tom Tomato, Streaking Squash, Reckless Red Radish and Groovy Green Beans. Mrs. G. Arden's Green Scene instruction book shows how to prepare the soil, plant the seeds, care for the vegetables and when to

Production of fruit and seed exhausts plants of their vigor and uses up plant nutrients. To help maintain plant vigor remove spent flowers from annual and perennial plants. Also remove rhubarb seed stalks as they appear. This will help promote vegetative growth of the plant.

THINGS to do this week:

—plant sweet corn, okra, bush and vine squash;

—set strawberry plants as soon as possible, hopefully you got them in last month;

—continue fruit tree spray schedule, lead arsenate is hard to find so substitute imidan in apple program; and harvest, according to Jack Sommers, Fayette County 4-H extension agent.

Youngsters from the third through eighth grades will automatically be enrolled in 4-H and receive the opportunity to attend 4-H camp and participate in the county fair.

All of Mrs. G. Arden's gardeners will be visited by the "plant doctors" later this summer. Older 4-H members serving as "plant doctors" will give advice to the young gardeners and try to help them with their project.

To participate youngsters need only to give their name, address, phone number, age and parents name when they pick up their seeds and booklet. Stop by the Extension Office at 319 S. Fayette St. this week to make this summer a Green Scene.

Solons seek budget accord

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Leaders in the Indiana Legislature remain hopeful an agreement can be reached on the budget, enabling the 1977 session to adjourn Saturday and avoid a special session.

Budget conferees have met behind closed doors all week and still have some unresolved issues. They are not elaborating, however.

Saturday is the deadline for the 61-day session, and if no budget is approved, Gov. Otis R. Bowen would have little choice but to call a special session. It could run 40 days.

Bowen is applying pressure to avoid such a call, criticizing procrastination by legislators. He said, "I have been a part of state government for more than two decades."

Two local volunteers set for VA awards on Sunday

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio — The Veterans Administration Hospital, Chillicothe, will honor its volunteers on Sunday, May 1. A total of 150 persons in the central and southern Ohio areas are scheduled to receive awards.

M.A. Holton, hospital director, announced that two residents of Washington C.H. are among the award recipients. Special certificates of service will be presented to Mrs. Howard Osborne, 511 E. Temple St., a volunteer of 21 years, and Mrs. Fred Root, 922 Briar Ave., for 20 years of service. Both ladies are affiliated with the Fayette County chapter of the American Red Cross.

The ceremony will be held at 1:30 p.m. at the Blue Star Mothers Memorial Stadium on the hospital grounds. Guest speaker will be C. William O'Neill, chief justice of the Ohio Supreme Court, and music will be provided by the Ohio State University Alumni Band. The patients and staff at the hospital extend an invitation to the public to join them in honoring their dedicated volunteers.

Burning incident probed by firemen

Smoke filled apartments above the Watson Office Supply Co. building at 113 W. Court St. Thursday evening, and the Washington C.H. Fire Department was called to investigate the incident.

A metal cover over the chimney was causing smoke to filter through holes in the chimney pipe. Wood was reportedly being burned in the basement of the building in an effort to provide heat for drying newly cleaned office equipment.

The three-story building is owned by Mary Loudner, 629 Fairway Drive. Firemen removed the cover on the chimney and requested that the burning be stopped.

Jackson County, settled by Welsh families in 1818, experienced its first boom in 1830 when a Welsh minister, digging a water well in his dooryard in Jackson, struck a rich coal vein. —AP

Drug possession suspect nabbed in police station

A 27-year-old Washington C.H. man was arrested for possession of marijuana at the Washington C.H. Police Department early Friday morning.

Glen Williams, 810 Lincoln Drive, reportedly had three bags of marijuana in his possession while he was standing in the entrance hall of police headquarters on N. Fayette Street. Williams, who was not wearing a coat, had reportedly come into the police station to keep warm.

The marijuana was discovered by Patrolman Michael R. Taylor. He was entering the building to go on duty at 3:53 a.m. when he noticed a plastic bag at Williams' feet. Taylor checked the contents of the bag and it appeared to be marijuana.

Taylor then asked Williams to empty his pockets, because he noticed another plastic bag partially hanging from Williams' pants pocket. Williams emptied his pockets and two more bags were found, according to the report.

A chemical test performed by Taylor and Sgt. Robert Massie disclosed that the contents of the bag were marijuana. Williams was then arrested for possession of the substance.

The Washington C.H. Police Department is investigating a house burglary at 1010 Sycamore St.

David E. Downs reported that when he returned from work at 9:30 p.m. Thursday he discovered his residence had been entered and two stereo component systems had been taken. The stereo systems were valued at $1,400. Downs also reported that several drawers in his home were ransacked, but nothing else was missing.

A bicycle theft report was also received by the police department Thursday. Danny Queen, 12, of 208 W. Elm St., told police officers that his red, 20-inch bicycle was taken from his residence between 8:30 p.m. Wednesday and 9 a.m. Thursday. The bike was valued at $10.

Open a three-game series tonight

Reds looking for revenge on Cubs

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, hoping to extricate themselves from the cellar of the National League West, are hoping to get even with the Chicago Cubs who open a three-game series here tonight.

Fresh from a three-game sweep of the Braves at Atlanta as they scored 35 runs in three games, the Reds are looking to avenge two straight losses to the Cubs in Chicago.

Target in tonight's game will be Cubs pitcher Ray Burris, 2-2, who allowed the Reds only one run on 13 hits beating Cincinnati 7-1 April 22.

Right-hander Woodie Fryman, 1-2, will be trying to resume his form.

The Reds lost to the Detroit Tigers, 6-4, in exhibition play Thursday night.

Cincinnati's ailing pitching staff got a lift Wednesday night from Pat Zachry, who won his second game against two losses and has eased manager Sparky Anderson's fears of a sophomore jinx.

"Any young guy has it go through his mind," said Anderson. "The jinx happens so much that it can't be a rare thing."

"I never doubted myself," drawled Zachry, a native of Texas. He had a 14-7 record his rookie year. "I'm not superstitious."

"It isn't just that he won but how he won," said Anderson of Wednesday's 3-1 performance. Zachry, who admitted a sight arm problem, had to work for the victory.

"He saved us," said Anderson, as the Reds swept the series in Atlanta but the defending world champions still sport only a 7-10 season record while front running Los Angeles was 15-3 before Thursday night's game.

Anderson is not conceding the division title to the Dodgers yet.

"They've got a lot of guys running their mouths and having a lot of fun. Let's see what happens in July and August."

Namath will lead Rams — Ewbank

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Weeb Ewbank, likely to retain his niche in pro football history forever, has slowed to a walk in retirement in his old college town.

But the little round man, turning 70 May 6, has lost none of his interest in the sport and can give you a few opinions.

The most likely ones are: —Joe Namath, if he latches on with Los Angeles, will lead the Rams to a division title.

"He had no protection with the Jets last year," said Namath's old coach. "He'll get it in Los Angeles. His knees aren't that bad. He can still get around. And with the receivers he's got, he'll hit 'em."

—The Oakland Raiders' Super Bowl reign will be short lived.

"Somebody'll beat them. They get to be champions a couple of years, they get overpaid and it's tough to stay on top."

And Ewbank then took a verbal poke at sports psychologists.

"That headshrinking stuff is a lot of bull...just a lot of bull," he said. "Only thing wrong with the Reds is they're not hitting. First thing you know they'll be second-guessing Sparky Anderson and start booing him. That's what's wrong with the country today— that kind of stuff."

Ewbank is the only man to coach three pro football championships from separate leagues. He led the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League before guiding the New York Jets of the rival American Football League to the same laurels.

Now Ewbank and his wife have settled into the quiet life of this southwestern Ohio town, the site of Miami University, his alma mater. It's some change from the bustling life of Baltimore and New York.

Blinkers key to success

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Derby is eight days away and For The Moment has a winning outlook ... thanks to blinkers.

"The blinkers made him much more aggressive," said jockey Angel Cordero Jr. after riding For The Moment to victory Thursday in the $119,350 Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland. "He never did relax — he was aggressive most of the way with blinkers on."

For The Moment, owned by Gerald Robins, had won his 1977 debut after an impressive 2-year-old campaign and finished second in a division of the Florida Derby and in the Santa Anita Derby before finishing a disappointing seventh in the Hollywood Derby April 17.

The colt, a full-brother to 1976 Derby runnerup Honest Pleasure, apparently was being distracted while running. So trainer LeRoy Jolley put blinkers on him for a workout earlier this week. He worked well and the blinkers stayed on for the Blue Grass which earned him a trip to the May 7 Derby in Louisville.

Mrs. Robert E. Lehmann, owner of Run Dusty Run, second in the Blue Grass by 1 1/4 lengths, and Mrs. Lehmann's son, Robert, whose Bob's Dusty finished fifth, also are expected to go to the Derby as is thirdplace Western Wind, owned by Joseph Roebeling.

The Point After

By MARK REA

It ought to be a long day Saturday

CIRCLEVILLE, Ohio — It ought to be a long day Saturday for those 400 track participants we spoke of yesterday.

Last night, designated as the night for the SCOL meet preliminaries, was like any other rainy night in Circleville. Nothing happened.

Team buses from Madison Plains, Miami Trace, Washington C.H., Hillsboro, Greenfield McClain and Wilmington pulled into Circleville High School only to pull out a few minutes later.

The all-weather track, presently being used by Circleville, was not a completely all-weather track. It couldn't stand the cold, windy hurricane that passed over Pickaway County last night.

Then, the weather service got into the act. A severe thunderstorm watch went into effect until 8 p.m. last night, and, although the skies were clearing about 6 p.m., the meet officials decided that they should just as well call everything off.

So, in the overcast and rain, the buses drove off into the clouds never to be heard from again. . . until Saturday.

That's when the SCOL meet preliminaries will be held. And that's when the SCOL meet will be held.

With prelims slated for the boys in the 120-yard low hurdles, 100-yard dash, 440-yard dash, 180-yard low hurdles, and 220-yard dash and for the girls with the 100, 220, 440 and 80-yard dash and the actual league meet following, it ought to be a long day Saturday.

Last year's prelims were important to the girls at Miami Trace.

On the Thursday before the meet, Vicki Bennett picked up six points toward the final total in the long jump. Bennett got off a leap of 15 feet, eight and one-quarter inches.

Tammi Arnold shaved 0.4 seconds off her best previous time in the 100 preliminary by zooming the distance in 12.1 seconds. That record is still on the books at Miami Trace.

But, as the Panthers went into Saturday's competition one point out of first place, they ended up third and Greenfield McClain came from last place in the Thursday competition to pile up 60 more points and win the meet by 23 points over second place Hillsboro.

But, no one will have the advantage this year going into Saturday's competition for the girls.

And, no one will have the advantage of knowing whether or not they will be in the finals for the boys. That could be an advantage for some and a disadvantage for others.

In any event, by the time the mile relay is finished Saturday (the last event of competition) the winners may forego the pleasure of that joyous victory lap and simply clutch their trophy and go home to bed.

It ought to be a long day Saturday.

Players pick own batting order; Tribe breaks seven game slump

By JOHN NELSON

AP Sports Writer

"And batting fourth, second baseman Duane Kuiper," the public address system blared out across 78,000 empty seats at the 80,000-seat Municipal Stadium in Cleveland.

It was Manager Frank Robinson's version of baseball democracy.

The Indians, mired in a seven-game losing streak and suffering declining attendance, finally broke through with a 4-3 victory over Toronto Thursday night, using a batting order the players chose themselves.

"I think that's probably the first time in the big leagues a guy with 1,500 major league at bats and no home runs hit fourth," said Kuiper, a singles-hitter batting .274 this season.

Although Kuiper went hitless in four trips against Toronto, the move worked. Buddy Bell, who normally hits fifth or sixth, chose the leadoff spot, and his two-run single highlighted a three-run third inning that gave the Indians their victory.

"Frank just tried to loosen everybody up," said Kuiper. "I was about the sixth person to pick, and everybody was avoiding that spot (cleanup), so I just jumped in there. I figured I'd never get another chance to hit cleanup."

In the only other American League game Thursday, Seattle beat Minnesota 4-3. In the National League, Houston downed San Francisco 3-1 and Los Angeles whipped San Diego 7-5.

After Bell in the order came Frank Duffy, Rico Carty, Kuiper, Andre Thornton, Johnny Grubb, Fred Kendall, Jim Norris and Rick Manning.

"We had to try something," said Robinson, who said he wasn't sure if he would keep the order Friday night at Milwaukee. "They've got a lefthander (Bill Travers) going, and I'm not that superstitious."

The victory, credited to Al Fitzmorris, 1-2, was Cleveland's first since April 17 when the Indians beat Boston in the second game of a doubleheader. Jesse Jefferson, 0-1, got the loss.

Mariners 4, Twins 3

The Mariners scored three times in the sixth inning on a single by Bill Stein, Carlos Lopez' double and a two-run bloop single by Jose Baez.

Steve Braun singled in what turned out to be the winning run in the eighth before Minnesota scored twice in their half of the inning on Mike Cabbage's sacrifice fly and an RBI double by Dan Ford.

Astros 3, Giants 1

Bob Watson smacked a two-run homer, his first of the year, and Joaquin Andujar scattered five hits before he was lifted in the ninth to give Houston its victory.

Andujar had a shutout going through six innings before the Giants scored an unearned run in the seventh. Ken Forsch got the save.

Dodgers 7, Padres 5

Steve Garvey drove in three runs with a double and his sixth home run of the season, and Rick Monday slugged a two-run homer to give the Dodgers a four-game sweep of their series with San Diego.

The victory also gave the Dodgers their most successful road trip in 20 years, losing only once during their 12-game swing.

Caldwell yields ninth inning homer

Tigers beat Reds in exhibition

DETROIT (AP) — Ron LeFlore is okay—but he sure put a scare into Detroit Tiger fans Thursday night.

For a while it looked like the Tigers were about to lose another regular to injury—and in an exhibition game, at that.

The All-Star centerfielder limped off the field after slipping in the sixth inning of Detroit's 6-4 baseball victory in a sandlot benefit game against the world champion Cincinnati Reds.

As it turned out, he was just shaken up. He had fallen while trying to catch a triple over his head by Ray Knight.

Jason Thompson, who smacked a grand slam homer in Wednesday's 10-9 triumph over the Chicago White Sox, snapped a 4-4 deadlock against the Reds with a two-run homer off Mike Caldwell in the ninth inning.

It landed in the upper deck in right field to make a winner out of Steve Grilli, who relieved starter Bob Sykes to begin the seventh.

"It was a straight changeup inside," Thompson said of the gopher pitch. "I was so frozen I didn't know what I was doing out there."

There were brisk winds and the temperature was about 35 degrees.

Cincinnati superstar catcher Johnny Bench—who played left field and hit a solo homer off Sykes in the fourth—said the left-handed rookie "has a good, live arm. But I wasn't out there analyzing anybody in that weather. I just wanted to get out of there."

Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson took superstar leadoff man Pete Rose out after he opened the game with a ground out. Pulled after 3½ innings were superstars Joe Morgan, George Foster and Bench.

Cincinnati opened the scoring with Bob Bailey's two-out homer in the second. Bench's blast came after Sykes struck out Morgan and Foster.

Rookie Steve Kemp tied it in the fourth with a two-run homer off the right-centerfield upperdeck facing, some 400 feet from home plate.

Rusty Staub singled in a run in the fifth for a 3-2 Detroit lead, but the Reds got two runs in the sixth as Knight tripled, then Ed Armbrister and John Summers doubled.

Kemp re-tied the score with a sacrifice fly in the seventh off starter Santo Alcala.

Oglivie hit a rare over-the-roof (94 feet up) blast in the second, but it was foul by a foot.

Russia boycotts Wimbledon

Politics, sports don't mix

NEW YORK (AP) — Headline: "Russia Orders Boycott of Wimbledon. Political Reasons Cited."

Shades of the Montreal Olympics. Choreograph of the Davis Cup and Federation Cup walkouts. Play it again, Sam. The politicians are still poking their grubby fingers into international sports, making athletes the pawns of their bids for national aggrandizement.

Two weeks ago U.S. Captain Tony Trabert was swinging a tennis racket to ward off demonstrators who swarmed over the courts at Newport Beach, Calif., in protest of a Davis Cup match against South Africa.

A target of the militants was a frail, mild-mannered man in a white cap, Frew McMillan, who probably never made a political speech in his life. It recalled the time in 1969 when South Africa's Gary Player, bidding for the PGA Golf Championship in Dayton, Ohio, had a cup of ice flung in his face by an apartheid protester as he walked from the ninth green to the 10th tee.

Gary gritted his teeth and played on. In the latest high-level political gesture, the Soviets have announced that their touring team, including Alex Metreveli and Olga Morozova, both former Wimbledon finalists, would be called home for a rest during the 100th anniversary Wimbledon Championships, starting June 20.

The reason: The presence at Wimbledon of players from South Africa, a country run by a white majority practicing separation of the races. This is a social and a political issue. It is a practice that cannot be condoned. Human rights must be defended at every pass.

But the playing fields should not be turned into battlefields, particularly when they are used more for the expansion of ideologies than for the protection of personal freedom and dignity.

Some idealists undoubtedly will debate this, arguing that sports cannot be segregated from everyday existence. But, in doing so, they must find some logical answer to the accepted fact that sports have mellowed more bitter enmities and torn down more international barriers than most frozen-faced ambassadors and sabre-rattling militarists ever have.

The Soviet Union was a mysterious, walled-in giant until it entered the Olympic Games at Helsinki in 1952. Its eight-oar crew broke the ice by inviting the American crew to a Russian luncheon. Gifts were exchanged, laughter and camaraderie. The U.S.-Soviet track and field series was inaugurated. Detente was born.

It took a rain of Ping Pong balls to tear down the bamboo curtain between the Western World and Mainland

China's phlegmatic nine millions.

We in America are not above reproach. We have countenanced slavery and bigotry, sullied our ethics in Vietnam and lain down with bloody dictators.

We can't blame the athletes. They have been busy closing the wounds.

Nicklaus favored

HOUSTON (AP) — He didn't mention any names, but Mark Hayes could have been talking about Jack Nicklaus.

"Somebody is going to figure out these greens and put a lot of distance between himself and the rest of the field," Hayes said.

He made the comment only moments after Nicklaus — who once appeared poised to make a runaway of the $200,000 Houston Open Golf Tournament, had observed: "I'm putting very, very well."

Nicklaus used only 24 strokes on the tricky greens at the 6,997-yard, par-72 Woodlands Country Club course, once had it seven under par for the day, then suffered a collapse that left him at 69, two shots back of first-round leaders Hayes and George Burns.

"This is a kind of medium-easy course," said the softspoken Hayes, winner of three titles in the last 12 months. "The greens are the only obstacle. I think somebody can play just pretty good, not really great, but if they can figure out the greens and make some putts, they can run away with it."

Nicklaus seemed ready to do just that. A score of 65 or 64 appeared not only possible, but very probable.

"When you're seven under after 13, you're thinking of maybe eight or nine under, a real low score," he said.

Instead of another birdie or two, he reeled off a string of four bogeys on his last four holes. He bounced approach shots over the green on his 15th and 16th, chipped back to about five feet and lipped out both putts.

76ers have chance to put away Celtics

By The Associated Press

The Philadelphia 76ers are in the odd position of having to explain why they're leading the Boston Celtics in their National Basketball Association quarterfinal series, with a chance to put it away tonight.

And the Celtics are in the equally odd situation of explaining why the 76ers won't.

But if the 76ers are on the defensive, they can only hope it carries over to the basketball court.

"We're not the worst defensive team — far from it," said Julius Erving in reply to suggestions that the 76ers' weakness is on Boston's end of the court. "What we did was get back on defense quickly and prepare ourselves."

The good doctor was explaining how the 76ers held the Celtics to under 100 points in their 110-91 drubbing of the Celtics in Philadelphia Wednesday night.

MERRY MARION MARVELS 4-H

The second meeting of the Merry Marion Marvels 4-H Club was called to order by President Teresa Dean, in the Heacock home on April 21. Arthur Taylor led the Pledges. Rhonda Heacock called the Roll and read the minutes of the last meeting.

Chris Taylor read the 4-H Constitution. Rhonda Heacock motioned that it be accepted as read and Debbie Hughes seconded this motion. We decided after discussion to have a bake sale as a money making project. Roger Heacock told the club about the Safety Speaking Contest which will be held later and encouraged everyone to participate.

Debbie Hughes reported on the Program Committee's progress and gave the dates for the rest of this year's 4-H meetings. Diana Hughes gave a safety report on "Bike Riding Safety". Chris Taylor's Health report was on "Good Posture" and a scavenger hunt followed her report.

Debbie Hughes motioned the meeting to be adjourned with Arthur Taylor seconding the motion.

Recreation leaders Gary Heacock and Brenda Dean led the club in a game of "Dodge Ball".

Refreshments were served by the Heacock family. Our next meeting will be at the Dean home on May 5th.

PERRY PEPPY FARMERS

On April 25th, the Perry Peppy Farmers 4-H Club held their meeting at the home of advisor Max Carson. The meeting was called to order by the vice-president Randy Hinkley and pledges were then led by Monica Wehner and Joe VanDyke. Secretary Anna Wehner read the minutes of the last meeting and no corrections were needed. New members were then introduced as Andy Williams and David Karnes. A date for the tour of MacTools will be decided at a later meeting. For new Business we moved the vice-president to become president because of the absence of our president. A new vice-president was elected as Bruce Carson. Project books were then given out by the advisors. Ticket money we had was given to the treasurer after the meeting. If more members need raffle tickets, contact Max Carson.

This meeting was adjourned by Anna Wehner, seconded by Charlie Wehner. Refreshments were served by Teresa Gross. The next meeting will be held at 8:00 p.m., May 9 at the home of advisor Gary Garrison. Refreshments will be served by Randy Hinkley and Todd Fox.

A Token Of Esteem For N.Y. Subways

UPTOWN, DOWNTOWN. By Stan Fischler. Hawthorn. 288 pages. $12.95.

For good or bad, nothing so instantly symbolizes New York City as its subways: the hustle and bustle, the high speed and low fare, the sheer size of the system and the crowds, the noise, dirt and seeming confusion.

A sports writer and author of more than 40 books, a train buff and subway rider since boyhood, Stan Fischler tells the New York subway's story in "Uptown, Downtown, a Trip Through Time on New York's Subways," and he sets the tone right in the introduction:

"On a global basis, the New York subway has formidable competition. London not only dug the first underground rapid transit system in the world, but constantly enlarged its tubes and maintains an elaborate, well-run operation. Paris has, in parts, an ancient system, but has also built a series of high speed lines, including one that links the international airport to the city's center (which New York conspicuously never has done).

"No subway is more ornate than Moscow's or more modern than Berlin's.

"But the winner, so far as I am concerned, remains the New York City subway, and this book is written to tell the reason why."

In 288 pages, 60 photographs and 115 original sketches, Fischler tells of the need for the rapid transit system, dating back to 1825, the planning, the building, the engineering and political delays and the disasters.

Armco predicts steel price hike

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Armco Steel Corp., the nation's fifth largest steel producer, is anticipating a price increase, particularly in flat rolled steel, but says that the amount has not yet been determined.

"Presently, there is not a proper cost-price relationship in steel and the new wage increase will reduce profit margins further," Armco president William Verity told the stockholders Thursday at the company's annual meeting. "Therefore, we are reviewing all our cost figures to determine the needed increases."

Verity's comments were in line with several steel executives who have called for price adjustments to recover increased costs, especially in flat rolled steel, which is used in the automotive and appliance industries.

"There must be a proper cost-price relationship so that a company can earn an adequate return for reinvestment in the business and to pay its shareholders," Verity said.

The Armco board chairman noted that other factors affecting steel's profitability are foreign imports and "increasingly restrictive" environmental standards.

"Eliminating that last 2 per cent of air emissions may not be worth the cost, particularly when we realize that all pollution control devices require a lot of energy," Verity said. "We believe it is time to consider the rational trade-offs, and to make sure that our limited energy and money go for the things that will do America the most good now and in the future."

Verity had harsh words for President Carter's proposed energy package, calling it "inflationary and 'frightening to me.'"

Verity said the plan is "apparently intended to be a new tax program in disguise which will have as its goal the funding of additional social and welfare programs."

"Instead of encouraging the private sector to solve our energy problem, he's trying to take us down the same roads that led us to the present shortages," the steel executive said.

Verity reported that Armco had recovered from a "disastrous" January and February to record a first-quarter profit of $6,163, or 15 per share of common stock.

These earnings represent an 81 per cent reduction from the comparable three months last year, but Verity said that if the present level of activity continues for the full year, results should compare well to 1976 when the company earned $123,726,000.

"Armco, like much of the country, has had a slow start," Verity said. "But almost every profit center has performed strongly during March and April. With more adequate profits for our steel mill products, 1977 can be a highly satisfactory year."

Although Armco is only fifth in steel production, it ranks third in sales and profits, a company spokesman said.

Verity later said that Armco also is taking a careful look at its overseas operations, complaining that "In certain countries, our people do a great job of operating at a profit, only to see currency fluctuations chop away those earnings when translated into dollars."

First quarter road deaths down 23 per cent from 1976

COLUMBUS, Ohio — It's still too early to make any long-term predictions, but Ohio motorists are off to an encouraging start toward making 1977 the safest year yet on the state's streets and highways.

According to provisional first quarter accident figures released today by the Department of Highway Safety, 278 persons lost their lives in Ohio traffic accidents during the first three months of 1977. This compares with 361 fatalities recorded during the same period last year — a drop of some 23 per cent.

As a matter of fact, this year's first quarter death toll is significantly lower than the 324 fatalities reported during the first three months of 1975 — the year in which Ohio posted its lowest-ever traffic death rate.

Highway Safety Director Robert Chiaramonte said the dramatic reduction in first quarter traffic deaths is partially a result of this January's terrible weather—but pointed out that the death tolls for both February and March of this year also ran well behind 1976 fatality figures for the same months.

"We may have a genuine trend on our hands," said Chiaramonte.

The highway safety chief said the two age groups experiencing the sharpest reductions in fatalities were children ages 0-14 years (a 62 per cent drop from 40 deaths in the first three months of 1976 to 15 first quarter fatalities this year) and teenagers between 15-19 years of age (a 29 per cent reduction from 69 first-quarter fatalities last year to 49 in 1977).

A major factor in the reduced children's death toll is reflected in the pedestrian accident figures. Overall pedestrian fatalities dropped from 77 a year ago to 48 during the first quarter of 1977, and more than half that total reduction occurred in the 0-14 age group — where there were 24 first quarter pedestrian deaths last year but only nine during the first three months of this year.

Among other noteworthy trends, Chiaramonte pointed out that single-car, run-off-the-road fatalities also declined dramatically during the first quarter of 1977, with 86 reported deaths compared to 123 fatalities for the same period a year ago — a 30 per cent decrease.

The highway safety chief said he hoped recent public information campaigns highlighting the teenage driver problem and the menace of one-car crashes have had something to do with this year's improved safety record; and he urged all Ohioans to take pride in their contributions to the saving of lives.

"We've got a running start toward making 1977 the safest year ever on Ohio's highways," Chiaramonte said. "If each driver will make it a matter of personal responsibility to keep speed down, avoid drinking and driving and be sure everyone in the car is wearing a seat belt, there is no reason why we can't achieve that goal."

The American Rolling Mills Co., Armco, in Middletown, was founded in 1900 by George M. Verity. Verity pioneered in setting up one of the first laboratories for steel research in 1910, developing the continuous rolling mill process which changed steel-making.—AP
